ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Oscar Whitsett Brought Back to Lyon County From Missouri.

Eddyville, Ky., July 2.—Marshal W. H. McCullom, of Kuttawa, has arrested Oscar Whitsett at Gray's Ridge, Mo., and jailed him at Eddyville, charged with assaulting two girls of this county.

Some time ago the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Allen, a widow, living near Cumberland river bridge, was assaulted. The heart-broken mother last week came to Kuttawa to Marshal W. H. McCullom, who is a wide-awake member of a detective agency and a noted criminal hunter, and pleaded with him to hunt Whitsett, and without promise of reward (for Mrs. Allen is poor), he spotted him in Missouri and now has him behind the bars in the Eddyville jail. On delivering the prisoner to Sheriff T. L. Cash it developed that there existed another charge of assault against Whitsett on a little girl of prominent parentage of the county, the bill having been found by the grand jury, which was responsible perhaps for Whitsett's leaving the State.

GAVE THE REBEL YELL

When Gen. Bennett H. Young Rose To Make His Speech.

SOLDIERS AT GETTYSBURG.

Mercury Over a Hundred Degrees On The Opening Day.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 2.—In the glare of a sun that sent the mercury bubbling over the hundred mark and made clothes a burden and a bath only a delusion, the armies of the north and the south Tuesday began the formal exercises set to mark the semi centennial of Gettysburg. Veterans to the number of 15,000, the army officers estimated, filed into the big tent set apart for the exercises, sat in the haze of heat for two hours and shook the camp with their cheers when the speakers made reference to a reunited nation.

Although the men in gray were far outnumbered by those in blue there were possibly a thousand southerners in the amphitheater and what they lacked in numbers they made up in lung power. When Governor Tener finished his speech, General Bennett H. Young, commander-in-chief of the Confederate veterans, rose slowly and bowed to him. "I can give you something that no one else can give you," he said. "We will now give you the rebel yell."

Nine famous Confederate generals and a thousand veterans of the war gave it so loudly that it was heard far away.

MEN IN BLUE CHEERED.

When General Young stepped forward to deliver his address he was greeted with wild enthusiasm, the Union veterans, led by Commander-in-Chief Beers, giving him three lusty cheers and a "tiger."

He took as his keynote the conviction of each side in the great struggle that each fought for a principle which each believed was the truth. One of his opening statements was that the northern soldiers deserved more credit than the southerners for the promulgation and successful realization of the present great reunion which he characterized as the greatest movement of its kind in the world.

This compliment to the northern veterans was greeted with loud cries of "no," to which General Young quickly replied: "I know better than you do." His speech captured the audience and he was overwhelmed by handshakes.

Among the two hundred guests on the platform were: Governors Mann, Virginia; McCreary, Kentucky; and Eberhardt, Minnesota; Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and the following Confederate generals: Robinson, Texas; West, Georgia; Thomas J. Shaffer, Louisiana; A. D. Williams, Florida; F. M. Law, Florida; and Carr, North Carolina.

No estimate can be given of the number of veterans present. The average age is 70 years and there are hundreds over 80. Five deaths have occurred among the veterans in camp. Most of the old fellows are quite vigorous.

NO CAUSE FOR KICKING

Corn And Tobacco Is Standing The Long Drouth All Right.

YOUNG CLOVER IS KILLED.

Local Showers In Different Sections Cheer Many Farmers.

It is almost impossible to find out the true condition of crops at this time all over the county or to make a forecast of the probable outcome of the growing crops. Farmers of the same neighborhood have different reports to make. All that we can learn by inquiry is that tobacco is standing the drouth very well, even in localities not touched by local showers. There have been many of these showers on different days in different sections.

The farmers as a whole appear to have no reason for kicking about the weather. With tobacco and corn not suffering, the wheat all harvested, and much of it already threshed, the farmers have little to complain of except that the young clover is killed. That is pretty bad, but it is usually much worse during a drouth. With good crops of fine wheat and the other two staple crops doing well and most farmers clear of debt, it seems to us that Christian county farmers are among the most blessed anywhere. We have heard a few men say they have had no rain for nearly a month, but we have heard far more say that they have had showers and their crops are in condition to wait some time for a regular ground-soaking, gully-washing rain.

This account of crop conditions would not be complete, so far as we are able to give it, without stating that on account of the want of pasturage cows are falling and the milk and butter supply is getting to be a little serious.

FISCAL COURT

Met In Regular Monthly Session Tuesday.

Not much business was before the Fiscal Court when it met in regular monthly session last Tuesday.

The court very wisely made a donation of $250 to the Pennyroyal Fair Company, to aid it in putting on the first fair in premiums. The court is alive as to the best interests of the county, as was heretofore evidenced by its helping to pay the yearly salary of Agriculturalist Morgan.

The regular allowance of accounts for monthly services were made and an order was made for bids for putting an iron bridge over Tradewater.

The contract to build one and a half miles of new pike on the Palmyra road was let to Robt. F. Vaughan. This pike will begin at Rives' hill and run north towards Howell. The price agreed upon was $2,290 per mile.

A number of citizens living on the Fairview pike made a strong appeal for repairing the pike, near J. P. Myers' farm, which was reported to be in a wretched condition. The court and the citizens arrived at an amicable solution of the matter by the farmers agreeing to haul crushed stone and screenings for a dressing, the county to furnish the material.

World Getting Better.

The call for volunteers to furnish 10,000 inches of skin for grafting purposes, to save the lives of victims of an explosion at Buffalo, brought enough responses the first day 270 in all. A rowing club of 200 members voted to volunteer as a club.

THREE LUCKY
YOUNG LADIES

Won Premiums In Waller's & Trice Contest, Just Closed.

FIRST PRIZE $300 PIANO.

Miss Wooldridge 1st, Miss Thompson 2d, Miss Faulkner 3d.

Waller's Trice & Premium Contest closed Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock. The three splendid premiums were awarded as follows:

Miss Nora Wooldridge received the $300 piano, as she held the largest number of cash ballots. The 2d prize fell to Miss Nell Thompson. This is a fine 3-piece mahogany bed room set. The third lucky young lady was Miss Myrtle Faulkner, who received a splendid full size Melton velvet druggist.

The contest for the first prize was between Miss Wooldridge and Miss Thompson and both of them made a long and persistent fight for the piano, Miss Wooldridge scoring with not a great many votes to spare. The third prize was well earned by Miss Faulkner, and had not her duties as stenographer for County Judge Knight kept her so confined to the office there would have been a merrier time for first prize, for she is a great hustler. It will be remembered that she won one of the diamond rings in the Kentuckian's contest three months since.

Miss Wooldridge is being congratulated on coming out first best in the struggle and she is kept pretty busy thanking the friends who stood by her so faithfully during the struggle. She is book-keeper at J. K. Twyman's grocery and richly deserves the aid given by her friends. Miss Thompson is one of the sales ladies at T. M. Jones' dry goods store and has hosts of friends who proved themselves true in the contest. The only advantage Miss Wooldridge had over Miss Thompson was that the former's friends happened to buy a little more furniture than did those of Miss Thompson.

All three of the young ladies are delighted with their premiums and want us to thank their friends for them, and Messrs. Waller & Trice ask us to express their appreciation to everybody for the interest taken in their contest, and especially the young ladies, one and all, who got into the struggle to win out, and their only regret is that they cannot afford to give everybody a valuable premium. But they will do one thing for all, and that is that everyone who bought furniture from them during the contest and gave their votes to any young lady contestant may expect the very lowest of prices in the future on anything in the store.

Messrs. Waller & Trice put their contest on three months ago merely as an advertising scheme to let everybody know that they have the stock and the low prices for everything in their line. They know the value of printer's ink wisely used and they are much pleased with the general wind-up of three months' effort—and so are the purchasers, while three happy-hearted, deserving young ladies are, after all, the greatest beneficiaries.

HOSPITAL ARCHITECT

Arrived Monday and The Jennie Stuart Hospital Trustees Will Get Busy.

DEATH CLAIMS
GOOD CITIZEN

Mr. Edgar Bradshaw Succumbed to Nephritis Last Tuesday Night.

WAS SUBSTANTIAL FARMER

Funeral Services at Home, Interment In Riverside Cemetery.

The news of the death of Mr. Edgar Bradshaw, received yesterday morning in the city, occasioned much surprise as very few knew that an insidious disease had been preying upon his vitality for several months. The end came Tuesday night after 1 o'clock. Nephritis caused him to take his bed only five days before his death.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Buckner Bradshaw, two daughters, Mrs. John Barker, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Edward Reynolds, of Julien, this county, and one son, John Bradshaw, who lives on the farm, near Fidelity.

Funeral services will be held at the home this morning at 8:30, conducted by Rev. Logan B. English, pastor of the Salem Baptist church. Following the services the remains will be brought here and interred in Riverside Cemetery.

Mr. Bradshaw was a native of this county and was born in the house in which he died, aged 66 years. He passed all his life on the magnificent farm, inheriting it from his father, Ben Bradshaw, who died many years ago. He united with the Salem Baptist church when a young man and was a useful and consistent member.

Postmaster For Providence.

Representative Stanley has recommended F. A. Casner for the postmastership at Providence, Ky., to succeed Mr. Hunter. He will make recommendations for three other offices soon.

TO MAKE HOME HERE

Manager Chas. Woodruff's Family Will Arrive This Week.

Mr. Woodruff's family will arrive this week from Rome, Ga. Mr. Woodruff has leased No. 216 West Fifteenth street and as soon as his family arrives will go to housekeeping. Mr. Woodruff is manager of the Christian-Todd Telephone Co. and during the time he has been here has made friends by the score. The following from the Rome Daily Press, of the 18th inst., shows the high regard the people of Rome have for our new citizens:

"Mrs. C. S. Sparks' beautiful lawn is the setting this afternoon at an affair of delightful pleasure planned by the members of the Womens Mission Society and the Young Womens Auxiliary of the First Baptist church, as a parting courtesy to Mrs. Charles Woodruff and Miss Sara Woodruff, whose influence and active interest have been greatly felt and will be sadly missed in the two church auxiliaries. The afternoon is marked by informality and the late afternoon hours find groups of charming femininity beautifully gowned gathered in response to the cordial invitations extended early in the week.

Mrs. D. B. Hamilton, president of the W. M. S., and Mrs. Ed. Rankin, Sr., of the Y. W. A., together with other officials are receiving the callers who include the members of the two societies, the Young Workers, the pastors and their wives of the central churches and the officials of the central church auxiliaries."

Rid Your Children of Worms.

You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brisbin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. No Profit in Alligators.
The difficulty about raising alligators to supply the demand for the animals and skins is that they do not attain full growth for about 100 years. The skin of the six or seven-year-old animal is available, however, for many practical purposes. There is one on a farm at Palm Beach which measures 18 feet in length and is said to be about 900 years old. There are several of these farms in operation at the present time, but the industry will not be really profitable until the wild alligators become scarcer.

HARD TO KNOW WHAT TO DO

Many People in a Case Like This Simply Would Have Held on to the Banknotes.

A man and his wife in town were congratulating themselves, just before dinner, on dining for once alone and at home. To them enter another man and his wife, who were neither known nor looked for, and had obviously come to the wrong house—a thing that, as a matter of fact, does occur—and all went smoothly till the women left the dining-room. Then the guest turned to the host and said, with emotion:

"Now do tell me the whole story about poor Sophia."

What was the host to do? With presence of mind, he replied: "It is really too painful. I hope you will excuse me."

"Oh, certainly, certainly," said the guest. "I would not be curious."

And he changed the subject. When the guests had gone and the hosts were wondering, a servant brought an envelope which the guests had left. It was addressed in pencil "For Sophia," and contained a handful of banknotes. Now, the hosts knew neither the name nor address of the guests and they vainly advertised for them.

A WOMAN'S WAY OF PROPOSING

Clever Handling of a Rather Stupid Lover.

The Princess Aileen, the king's youngest daughter, having five brothers and three older sisters, had no hope of ever inheriting the throne. Those who are born at the wrong end of a royal family are not in an enviable position. The princess must needs keep up all the customs of regal estate without ever coming to a regal inheritance. Her brother, the heir apparent, was betrothed to a girl he had never seen, but as an offset if he lived long enough he would be king. The princess was expected to marry one of royal blood without hope of becoming a queen.

The matter did not especially trouble her till she took it into her head to fall in love with her tutor. His father was a count, and the son would succeed to the title and estates, but he was no match for a king's daughter. No sooner did the princess discover that she wanted the handsome and intellectual young man than the injustice of her position occurred to her. She went to her father, the king, whose pet she was, threw her arms around his neck and begged to be allowed to marry the tutor. The king, who could refuse her nothing, at last consented and told her she might send her suitor to him.

"But he is not my suitor," said the princess.

"Certainly not," replied the king. "It is you who have proposed to him."

"But I have not proposed to him."

"Well, then, if you intend to marry him you had best do so."

The objections having been removed the princess betrothed herself of the proposal. "However will I do it?" she said to herself. "I've read stories of men who have shrunk from proposing to the girls they loved, and I never had any patience with them. I must be brave."

To make matters worse, both because of maidenly modesty and that she had not supposed she would be permitted to marry the man of her choice, she had never given him the slightest intimation that she loved him. She must assure him of this and follow it up with a proposition. "I shall intimate to him," she said, "which way the wind blows, and if he fails to see it I can't help it."

Having vainly tried for a month to make up her mind to the task she at last resolved to do so after her daily lesson on a certain morning. So, the exercises being finished, when the tutor arose to go she said to him:

"Please don't hurry today. I have something to say to you."

He resumed his seat and looked at her inquiringly. There was not much encouragement in his reception of the announcement.

"You told me yesterday," she said, "that it was the turning of the earth on its axis that caused the trade winds to blow in one diagonal direction in the northern hemisphere and in an opposite direction in the southern hemisphere. We are in the northern hemisphere, where the winds blow east. I believe that's right. Now, if we were in the southern hemisphere they would blow west, wouldn't they?"

"Quite right."

"Well, what I would like to know is if everything in the southern hemisphere is transposed? Do the men and women down there stand in a reversed relationship?"

Astonished at the irrelevance of the question, he looked at her in silence for a time, then said, "I am not aware of any such transposition."

She looked at the ceiling, then at the floor, then out of the window.

"I didn't know," she finally continued, "but that you, being a very sure man, would catch my meaning."

Still more confounded, he scrutinized her face for a clew. "Begging your royal highness' pardon," he said, "I fail to see any connection whatever between your question and anything that pertains to a single organic, inorganic or spiritual condition."

"I suppose," she said in a disheartened tone, "that I shall have to ask you a leading question. You are always asking me leading questions, you know."

"Pray do so."

"At the pole"—she paused.

"Well, at the poles?"

"Which way does the wind blow?"

The young man knit his brow, pulled his mustache, crossed and recrossed his legs, then said:

"Theoretically there should be a dead calm at the poles."

The girl turned away impatiently.

"I see," said her tutor, "you did not intend to ask the question scientifically."

"No; I did not."

"I dare say I am very stupid. I've not been used to associate much with the members of your sex. Your language is too subtle for me."

"Perhaps," said the princess, rising, "the day may come when you will understand what I have said to you."

There was something in the look and reproach she gave him that let a ray of light in upon his brain. And after all, is not a look the only language of love? Her mysterious message was truly shot from her beautiful eyes. Yet he could not believe his own. Could this daughter of a score of kings mean to tell him that she loved him? It seemed impossible. But, manlike, he determined to take the chances.

"At last I see, royal sweetheart," he said, "which way the wind blows."

The court journal the next morning announced the princess' betrothal.

Heroic Treatment

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

My friend Rogers was forty years old and a bachelor. He had no taste for society, and his life was solitary in the extreme.

I had been to his room occasionally, and his landlady knew my name. One day Rogers had worked himself up to such a condition that she feared he was going to commit suicide. They hunted my name in the telephone register and called me up to say that she wished I would come round and take charge of him. I went to his room and found him walking the floor with a desperate look in his eye, took him out with me for dinner, after which we went to the theater, and spent the night in my rooms. Before going to bed I said to him:

"Rogers, the thing for you to do is to get married."

"Who would marry me?"

"I know several young women who would be glad to get you. I'll introduce you to the one that I think would be the most likely to suit you if you like."

"Anything to relieve me of myself."

The young person to whom I introduced Rogers was twenty-seven years old. Not having thus far fulfilled the condition for which she was made—a wife and mother—she was beginning to get dissatisfied with herself and those about her. I told her of Rogers' case and she confessed that it was much like her own. She, too, said "Anything but the life of an old maid." It was understood when I brought them together that it was for the purpose of matrimony, and they didn't pretend to take they did not feel—that they were in that delirium commonly called love. They made short work of the preliminaries and, being very much pleased with each other, became engaged and were married.

I think their honeymoon was as happy as it is with married couples usually. Both seemed to have taken laughing gas. There was no attention too great or too trivial for Rogers to pay his wife, and she seemed disposed to suffer any inconvenience rather than put him to the slightest discomfort.

I called on them soon after their marriage. Then I did not see them again for six months. I met Rogers, and, grasping him by the hand, said:

"How are you, old man? How goes married life?"

"Oh, married life is well enough, suppose?"

"Well enough? Why, I thought a first you considered it delightful."

"That was in the beginning, when we hadn't really settled down to the business of married life. I find double harness pretty hard to work in some times."

"Have any company?"

"All we want."

"Well, I'm coming round to see you pretty soon."

When I called Rogers had been detained at business, and I was entertained by his wife. Being an old friend of mine, I did not hesitate to ask her how married life suited her.

"Oh, I don't suppose," she said, "that Ed is any harder to live with than most men."

"He isn't somber, is he?"

"Oh, no; he is cheerful enough, but I surprise him every now and then by not being what he has always supposed a woman to be, and if all men are what he is sometimes they must be!"

While we were talking in came Ed. He saw by his wife's expression that she had been pouring her troubles into my ear, and he didn't like it. He settled down with a very ugly look on his face.

"Well," he said to me, "I suppose she's been making me out a pretty hard nut."

"See here," I said, flaring up, "I did the best I could for you two in bringing you together. If you want to quarrel I would prefer that you leave us out."

"Who's drawing you in?" asked the husband, with a snarl.

"He's drawn himself in," snapped the wife. "He tried to pump you when he met you the other day, then came around here to pump me."

"Pump you! What interest have I in whether you get on or don't get on together? I bid you both good evening."

I seized my hat and got out of the house as quickly as I could, followed by more caustic remarks from both of them and making to myself more caustic remarks still.

"What a fool I was to try to do anything with a bachelor and an incapable old maid! One might as well try to make a crooked tree grow straight. Catch me trying to help any one through way again."

When we do a kindness we don't know whether it will turn out such an injury. I thought I knew that this case I had done the latter. But I was mistaken. The two needed heroic measures to bring them together and heroic measures to get them fused. After the heyday of wedlock had passed they needed a blowpipe. I was the blowpipe. When they both turned to I fought me they found a common vent for their irritation, and its flow up each other was directed in another channel.

Rogers came to see me, apologized for himself and his wife and begged me to dine with them the next Sunday. I went, and we have been excellent friends ever since.

A baby took up the case where I left it.

Sugar Moves Down to $4.75,
Flour Tumbles To $5.50.

Young people matrimonially inclined but frightened at the "high cost of living," can take courage. Two of the necessities of life got a downward movement on themselves this week and still other declines may be predicted. Sugar is now selling at $4.75 per hundred and flour at $5.50. This is a drop of 25 cents on sugar and 45 cents on flour this week. Second grade flour also came down 45 cents on the barrel.

It will be remembered that this paper predicted the drop in sugar three weeks ago. It is the custom of the sugar trust to cut the price of sugar during the canning season of a good fruit year, in order to get rid of accumulated stocks. In the fall prices are again advanced. Congressional action as to free sugar in three years may keep prices down in the fall.

READY FOR BIDS

The Public Library Board of trustees held a meeting Tuesday afternoon and made up an annual report to be submitted to the Council. Waller & Brodie, the architects, promised to have the specifications ready this week and as soon as they are ready a meeting will be held to advertise for bids.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CAPT. McJ. DAVIS

Badly Injured By Being Kicked By a Horse.

While harnessing a horse, Capt. McJ. Davis was kicked in the face by the animal and was rendered unconscious. He remained in that condition until he was taken out of the buggy at his home in the city. He knew nothing as to how he happened to be injured when he became conscious, though he had gotten into his buggy and started home. The theory is that he became unconscious after getting into his buggy. A physician was called and it was found that Capt. Davis was injured about the head. One of his lips was so badly cut that three stitches were necessary, besides being otherwise injured. His injuries will in no way interfere with his canvas for the Republican nomination for sheriff.

Kansas Woman Helpless.

Lawrence, Kas.—Mr. J. F. Stone, of this city says, "My wife suffered for ten years from womanly troubles, during two years of which she was totally helpless. She was examined by many physicians, some of whom gave her up to die. Finally she began to take Cardui, and since then has greatly improved in health. The tonic, strengthenings, and restorative effects of Cardui, the woman's tonic, on the womanly constitution are the most valuable qualities of this popular medicine. Cardui acts specifically on the womanly constitution. Half a century of success proves that Cardui will do all that is claimed for it. Try it for your trouble.

Bible School.

The Western Kentucky School of Methods held its first session in McLean College Monday. Rev. W. J. Clark, of Louisville, is in charge. In addition to instruction in how to study the Bible, pupils are shown approved ways of doing church work and religious instruction, besides lectures on popular subjects. All night exercises are free. Enrolled students are entertained in the College at a nominal rate. Evening sessions are held in the Ninth Street Christian church. It will close July 5.

SUMMER CONCERTS

Somebody is "Going After You" and Don't Turn 'Em Down.

Everybody knows that we have one of the best bands in the South and there is no reason why we should not have open-air concerts in Virginia Park during the remainder of "the good old summer time." All that is needed for Director Lebkuecher to announce the concerts is the raising of about $400. This can be done, easily—as it has been done during the past two or three years. There are a big lot of people here, especially the young, who enjoy the music of the Third Regiment as much as they do the large musical organizations that have been here for the past several years. Now that there is a movement on hand to assure the concerts, let nobody who is able to give turn down the solicitors.

Condition Encouraging.

Dr. J. L. Moody, of New York City, was sent by Attorney General McKeynolds to Elkton to diagnose the condition of Mrs. Ellen McKeynolds, injured here by a fall two weeks ago. Dr. Moody passed through the city Tuesday night and said that he thought Mrs. McKeynolds' hip was fractured, but owing to her advanced age he could not say positively. Attorney General McKeynolds is ready to lay aside Governmental duties at any time he may be summoned to his mother's bedside.

Bob Taylor Lives.

In the two bright and beautiful books just issued, "Lectures and Best Literary Productions," and "Life and Career" of Senator Robert Love Taylor, handsomely illustrated, you cannot hear again his voice or see the humorous curl of his lips, that convulsed a continent with laughter, but, within the covers of these volumes, are the pictures woven of his wondrous words, and, laughing through their sunny pages, are all of the inimitable stories which he told to the multitudes. In "Life and Career," pens of genius have traced his romantic life from its morning in "Happy Valley," through his young and roseate dreams through stress and storm, through cheering throngs, and on into the waiting shadows, loved and laurel crowned.

We expect to sell millions of these books. First edition going fast. Cloth, $2 the Volume, $4 the Set, Half Morocco, $2.75 the Volume, $5 the Set, Full Morocco, $5.50 the Volume, $10 the Set. AGED CITIZEN

Passed Away At Oak Grove Last Sunday.

Mr. John W. Shaw died at his home last Sunday afternoon. His farm is near Oak Grove, where he had lived for many years. He was a sufferer from cancer, which caused his death. He was a man of high character and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was born in Cheatham county, Tenn., in 1828, and is survived by his aged widow.

Monday funeral services were held at the home, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and neighbors, conducted by Rev. John Rice, after which a long line of vehicles followed the remains to Greenwood Cemetery, Clarksville, where they were laid to rest.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

No Other Newspaper in the World Gives So Much at So Low a Price.

This is a time of great events and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The Democrats, for the first time in sixteen years, will have the Presidency and they will have the Presidency and they will also control both branches of Congress. The political news is sure to be of the most absorbing interest.

There is a great war in the Old World, and you may read of the extinction of the vast Turkish Empire in Europe, just as a few years ago you read how Spain lost her last foot of soil in America, after having ruled the empire of half the New World.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

SOME DAINTY OMELETS

DELICIOUS VARIATIONS THAT ARE WORTH TRYING.

Housewives Who Are Perplexed to Add Variety to Table at This Season Will Find Relief in These Suggestions.

Many delicious variations can be made with the plain omelet as a point of departure. Sardines broken up and mixed with lemon juice and melted butter, anchovy paste, a teaspoonful mixed smooth with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; grated cheese of any kind, a cupful of cooked oysters finely minced, chopped parsley, as well as any bits of minced meat, ham, kidney, chicken, liver, sausage, cooked bacon, all these additions are worth while.

A delicate change from the plain kind is the omelet a la creme. For it make a cream sauce and mix half a cupful with the six-egg omelet before cooking. Spread the same amount of cream sauce on half of the omelet before folding it. This sauce should be moderately thick, made with a cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour.

Blazing omelet is a plain omelet over which a little rum or brandy is poured. The alcohol is lighted as the omelet is sent to the table and as soon as it has burned off the omelet should be eaten.

A well-made and well-seasoned Spanish omelet is a lunch in itself. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add an onion chopped fine, six mushrooms and one red and one green sweet pepper cut in small pieces. Cover and cook slowly for twenty minutes. Make a plain omelet from six eggs, turn it on a hot platter, pour the Spanish sauce around it and send at once to the table. Spanish omelet is sometimes made by American cooks from stiffly beaten eggs, the yolks hardly mixed with the whites even after they are cooked.

Quaker omelet is a good one for a beginner, for it is hardly an omelet at all. To make it beat four eggs until they are well mixed. Soak half a pint, a cupful, of bread crumbs in half a pint of milk until the crumbs are soft and then add the eggs and beat with an eggbeater until the bread is blended with the milk. Season with salt and pepper and pour into greased pie plates. Bake in a quick oven and serve from the dish in which it was cooked.

A delicious and nourishing omelet is made in Denmark, where the nutritive value of dairy products is realized and where, too, eggs never reach the price of train fares. A Danish omelet has a cream sauce of three tablespoonfuls of butter, three of flour and two cups of milk. In the meantime break macaroni into one inch lengths and boil it in salted water until it is tender; then drain it. When the cream sauce is cold add six egg yolks, two at a time, beating the mixture five minutes after each yolk addition. Beat six egg whites stiff, fold them into the yolk mixture, sprinkle with pepper and salt and pour the omelet over the macaroni, which has been arranged on the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Bake the omelet in a steady hot oven for 30 minutes and serve at once. Beaten butter is used in Denmark with this omelet, which is simply butter creamed with a fork or spoon and blended with a taste of sugar.

Sweet omelets are made by adding a teaspoonful of powdered sugar to a six-egg omelet before cooking and spreading the omelet with fruit, jam, jelly or preserves before turning. The sweet should not be thickly spread on, as it should furnish simply a suggestive flavor, not make the omelet a rich dessert.

Cold Tongue in Jelly.
A canned or fresh tongue, one pint good, clear stock; one onion (stuffed with cloves), one-half ounce gelatin, seasonings. A canned tongue makes a good dish, but a fresh one is better. Put on the stock with seasoning and the onion, to cook gently. Meanwhile soak the gelatin. Strain the stock, add the gelatin, let all dissolve and color a nice brown. Cut the tongue into thin slices and arrange in a plain mold or pan, seasoning and scattering chopped parsley over it all. When the stock is nearly cold pour it on the tongue. Set a plate over with weight on it. When set, turn out and serve.

Chocolate Bavaioles.
Heat two cups of milk in a double boiler and add two cups of sugar. Melt four squares of chocolate in a small saucepan set in another of hot water, then mix with the milk and sugar. Soak one-third box of gelatin in one-third cup of cold water and stir into the hot mixture, then strain and add one teaspoon of vanilla. When the mixture begins to thicken beat it well until cold and a fine froth is formed. Then fold in two cups of cream beaten light. Turn into a serving dish or into small molds and set away to become cold and firm—Alice E. Whitaker.

Veal Croquettes.
Put two cupfuls of finely shopped veal in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of butter, the beaten yolks of two eggs, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of paprika and speck of mace. Stir the mixture over the fire until thoroughly heated, then set aside to cool. Shape into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs, let stand one or more hours and fry until well browned. Serve with tomato sauce.

FOR LUNCH OR DINNER

FOUR GOOD RECIPES THAT ARE OF VALUE.

Pressed Beans and Sausage Make an Excellent Dish to Serve at Either Meal—Spanish Ham and Eggs Worth Trying.

Pressed Beans and Sausage.—Let one pint pea beans soak over night; wash, drain and cook until very tender, but not broken, in boiling water. Put the beans in baking dish with sausage here and there, using about one-half pound sausage. Dissolve one tablespoon salt in one pint boiling water and pour over the beans, adding more if needed. Bake five or six hours and serve hot with catsup or any other table sauce.

Spanish Ham and Eggs.—Cut stale bread into one-half inch slices and soak until soft in one cup milk mixed with one beaten egg. Fry a delicate brown, on a well-buttered griddle or spider. Mix one cup of minced leftover ham and one-third of minced left-crumbs with milk to moisten, or with the remaining egg and milk. Heat it and season with pepper. Cook several eggs in water just below the boiling point until firm enough to keep in shape after removing the shells. Put a whole egg on two slices placed side by side and serve at once.

Cream of Celery Soup.—Wash and cut into inch pieces one bunch of celery, boil it in one pint of salted water until tender enough to mash and strain; melt one tablespoon of gelatin until smooth and stir into one pint of hot milk or cream; then add to the celery, with salt and pepper, and boil all together for five minutes. A few drops of onion juice improves this dish for some people. A good and easy way to get onion juice is to rub the onion, after the outside skin has been removed, on a rough grater. Four to eight drops gives a suggestion, without the positive onion flavor.

Cream of Celery with Stock. This is a delicious soup. It requires a white broth for stock, and in this (which may be made of veal) cook plenty of white stalks of celery, pass through a sieve and thicken with flour mixed smoothly in milk; add butter and stir well.

Steamed Peach Roll.—Sift two cups of flour with one scant teaspoon of salt and three tablespoonfuls of baking powder, rub one rounded tablespoonful of butter and moisten with enough milk to make a rather stiff dough. Place on a floured board, pat into a rectangular shape, cover with sliced peaches, dust with flour and sugar, roll into a loose roll, pinch the edges together, wrap in a floured cloth and steam one hour. Serve with peach sirup slightly thickened with arrowroot or cornstarch.

Fig Custard.
Scald one quart of milk. Mix two tablespoonfuls of corn starch, three-fourths of cupful of sugar, and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Pour scalded milk gradually, while stirring constantly, into mixture, and cook in double boiler ten minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, and afterwards occasionally. Add yolks of three eggs, slightly beaten and cook three minutes. Cut one-half pound of figs in small pieces, put in double boiler, and add one-fourth cupful of boiling water, one-fourth cupful of sugar, and one tablespoonful of lemon juice, and cook until figs are soft. Combine custard and fig mixtures, cool, and turn into a serving-dish. Beat whites of three eggs until stiff, and add gradually, while beating constantly, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar; then add one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice. Pile by spoonfuls over the pudding.

Roasted Sausages.
Do you like sausages? If so try this way of preparing them. Take a medium-sized white onion, chop fine and brown it slightly in butter, add half a cup of rice, a pinch of salt, shake of pepper and moisten it with a pint of boiling stock or bouillon. Bring to a boil, cover it and cook gently. It is said to be a mistake to wash rice the usual way and that it should be put in a piece of cheesecloth or fine sieve and water poured over it, then spread the rice out on a cloth to drain. Never stir the rice while boiling it. It is done when it absorbs all the fluid. Now add butter the size of an egg and mix in the rice, using a silver fork. Place rice in serving dish. While cooking the rice get ready 12 very small sausages, roast them and place on top of the rice.

Measured Angel Cake.
Take one glassful of whites of eggs, which will be nine or eleven, according to size of eggs, add one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a pinch of salt. Beat until stiff enough to the dish can be turned upside down and the eggs lightly, so lightly that particles together one cupful of flour and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, into this fold the eggs lightly, so lightly that particles of beaten eggs can be seen as the mixture is turned into the baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven until a nice light brown.

Quick Bleaching.
Handkerchiefs and white clothes that have become yellow from use of too much soap, or any other cause, may be whitened in the following manner: After washing let them soak over night in a tub of clear water, to which is added a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. When ironed they will be white as snow.

LOST IN A FOG

By THOMAS R. DEAN

It was summer, and I was on the seashore. Desirous of getting away from every one, I started out for a walk on the beach. I had gone several miles perhaps (I could have walked on the same stretch of sand for half a day without meeting an obstacle) when I saw a bank of cloud coming in from the ocean. In a few minutes I was enveloped in it. The wind that had brought it in died down to a dead calm, and everything was still.

I thought I had my bearings and,
turning, started back toward my hotel. But I was off my course, for I had not gone far before I stepped on the verge of a shallow indentation in the sand filled with water left by the outgoing tide. It was evident that I had been walking into the ocean. I turned and started again, as I supposed, toward the dunes, but I must have swerved, for I walked on and on for some time on sand. Then I stood still.

It was a singular sensation, standing there, all direction obliterated—something like being in perfect darkness or on the ocean out of sight of land. No, it was like neither of these; it was like itself only. But I wondered if being suspended in space would resemble the sensation I experienced. Then suddenly a voice came out of the surrounding vapor. It was a girl's voice, sounding as clear and distinct as if spoken in the stagnant atmosphere following a snowstorm.

"Here I am."
I was so startled at the sudden break of the surrounding oblivion that it did not occur to me to make a sound myself. There was something in the change from isolation to contiguity that seemed like passing from nothingness to life. Then, too, the density of the atmosphere imparted a melodious tone to the voice that harmonized with a chord in my own being. I had plenti-tude of time within a few seconds to feel all these things before I said:

"And here am I."
Sound does not of itself give direction, and I knew not whence the words I had heard came. But in another moment the fog directly before me darkened, then resolved itself into a girl's figure. Seeing me, a stranger to her, she stepped back, then stood still.

"Are you lost?" I asked.
"Indeed I am," was the reply. "A girl friend and I were caught in the fog. She stepped out ahead of me and we became separated. I called her."

"I would be happy to guide you," I said, "but I am unable to guide myself. However, you had better permit me to stand by you till the fog lifts."

"I'm afraid my friend may have walked into some quicksand or water or something. She was with me a few minutes ago and has suddenly disappeared."

"Call her," I suggested.
"Helen, Helen!" called my companion.

She elicited no response.
"We may as well go on," I said;
"doubtless we shall come out somewhere. Don't worry about your friend.
There are no quicksands on this beach."

We moved—in what direction we knew not—and chatted as we proceeded. There seemed a great change, a great relief from the preceding isolation to this companionship. I certainly felt it, and the girl kept very close to me, as if fearful she might lose me as she had lost her friend.

"What is that?" she asked suddenly.
"Why?"
She pointed, but I saw nothing. She told me that she had seen something dark moving beside us, but as soon as she spoke it quickly faded.

We went on for some time, but all was sand. The beach was broad, very broad, and the ebb tide went out a great distance. I did not wonder that we reached nothing different. Then I saw a dark spot moving near us. My companion saw it, too, and, frightened, clung to me.

I am not superstitious and had it not been for my companion would have sprung toward the spot to discover whether it was human. But I found that clinging of a fair girl so delightful that I preferred to remain as I was. I reassured my companion in a whisper, putting my lips nearer than necessary to her ear and feeling her warm breath. I kept my eyes on the spot while she turned her face toward me that she might not see it. I was puzzled as to what it could be, but I believed it to be some animal, though I could hear no footsteps.

"It must be a ghost!" I said in a husky stage voice, whereupon my companion clung to me the tighter, which was the effect I intended to produce.

Suddenly the fog began to clear, and with that rapidity with which fogs sometimes take themselves away, and revealed the figure of a girl walking rapidly away from us.

"Why, it's Helen!" exclaimed my companion. "I believe she has been near us all the while."

"Helen!" she called.
The retreating girl stopped and turned. I could see that the surprise she showed was feigned. She joined us with an amused smile on her face and confessed that she had heard the words "Here I am," but, thinking to bother her friend, had remained silent.
When she was about to reply she heard my "And here am I." She had kept silent to get a bit of fun out of it and had succeeded.

The Moguls will return to-day from a rather ill-starred trip to Cairo and will begin a new series with Clarksville here at 3:30 this afternoon.

A morning game will be played in Clarksville tomorrow and the teams will return here for a game at 3 p.
m. These holiday games are expected to be the banner games of the season. Usual prices.

Mrs. Vest Felt Like Crying.

Wallace, Va.—Mrs. Mary Vest, of this place, says, "I hadn't been very well for three years, and at last was taken bad. I could not stand on my feet, I had such pains. I ached all over. I felt like crying all the time.
Mother insisted on my trying Cardui.
Now I feel well, and do nearly all my housework." No medicine for weak and ailing women, has been so successful as Cardui. It goes to the spot, relieving pain and distress, and building up womanly strength,
in a way that will surely please you.
Only try it once.

Comes With Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence James Pope, of East Orange, N. J., who were married June 2, have arrived in the city from their bridal tour and will make Hopkinsville their home. Mr.
Pope will be chief statistician with the Kentucky Public Service Co. His bride is a daughter of Judge Irvine,
a distinguished lawyer of Ithaca, N.
Y. They will be given a cordial welcome to the Pearl City.

The man who designated "Bread the Staff of Life" was merely the advance agent for Cate's Blue Ribbon
Flour and water ground pearl meal.

Light Sentence.

John Nicholson, of Vandalia, Mo., pleaded guilty to the charge of pouring gasoline on his wife and adopted son and burning them to death, and was given a life sentence.

"THE GLORIOUS FOURTH."

No Big Features But a Day of Rest and Recreation.

We know of no special demonstrations scheduled for tomorrow, July 4th. Many of the people will take a day off and visit friends in the county, others will attend the picnic, dance and baseball game and good time generally at Crofton. Some will have a private picnic at Lake Tandy, probably. Business houses will no doubt close their houses at noon or before. The postoffice and banks will be closed, though there may be one mail delivery. Many fans will go over to Clarksville and see the Moguls tackle the volunteers on the diamond, and then come home and see the vanquished team get its revenge at the park in the afternoon.

Everybody who likes a good game
of ball, clerks and everybody else, will have a chance to see some fine work when Hopkinsville tries to take all the starch out of Clarksville.
Many who cannot well spare the time on other occasions consider it quite an event and go to the park when our friends over the line come to see us.

For Sale. A gentle driving and work horse, five years old, 16 hands high. Will sell at a bargain.

Lacey-Moorefield.

John Lacey and Lillian Moorefield, of Lafayette, Ky., a runaway couple were married at the Courthouse in Clarksville Tuesday night by Squire Sam Kerr. An elopement was necessary on account of the young lady not being of statutory age for matrimony in this state without parental consent.
